

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter in support of Bryant & Stratton College as an outstanding institution of higher learning providing training for individuals that are capable of being productive in today's everchanging workplace.

I have recently worked with Bryant & Stratton College and have hired, Sophia, one of their recent Early Childhood students at my prior place of employment, The Learning Experience. Sophia received her Early Childhood Education Associate of Applied Science Degree in April 2022 from Bryant & Stratton College. With the talents, and education she brought to our center, I would not be opposed to hiring another graduate from their program in the future at my new organization. The college focuses on training people in both the necessary technical skills for their desired trade and the important soft skills such as professionalism, communication, and the ability to work with others. Sophia brought all of this and more into my classrooms and was eager to learn new skills to apply to the position. In my experience, their college has demonstrated a commitment to local employers by working with us in listening to our work needs and then developing a program of study to support both students and employers to provide employment matches. I am confident Bryant & Stratton College will continue to train other future employees to continue to help my company excel in the future and help grow the Wisconsin workforce, and I am eager to work with them again!

If there is any additional information I can provide, please do not hesitate to reach me by any of the means below.

Sincerely,

Missy Dieterich. Ed.S., M.Ed.
